

The Essentials of Government of the Zhenguan Reign

27-28 June 2016, Leiden University

In the early eighth century Wu Jing compiled the sayings of Emperor Taizong and his ministers (620s-640s) and arranged them according to a hierarchy of topics that were deemed key to good government. The text has since then been used to educate emperors and elite men and has become a standard reference in East Asian political thought since the eighth century. This is the second in a series of workshops on the translation and uses of The Essentials of

人也, 近徙家

Government.

Participants:

placeName1 巨鹿

partialN

pai

若從

諫議

full

累遷

嘗謂曰:

既誅

何也?」眾皆為之危懼。

cialTitle2 皇太子

性又抗直,無所屈撓。

nePeriod2 三年

llName6 太宗

我於卿者乎?」

1Name9 長孫無忌

tialName8 息隱

officialTitle3

己之主, 竭其力用。又勞之曰:

Jack Chen (University of California, Los Angeles) Chu Ming-kin (Leiden University) Anthony DeBlasi (University at Albany) off Hilde De Weerdt (Leiden University) 「卿] Tineke D'Haeseleer (Princeton University) Glen Dudbridge (University of Oxford) timePeriod3 David McMullen (University of Cambridge) Oliver Moore (Leiden University) Anna Shields (Princeton University) Gabe van Beijeren (Leiden University) 臣見之者

For more information please contact Hilde De Weerdt

European Research Council

Established by the European Commission

Leids Universiteits Fonds

Discover the world at Leiden University